In many ways Bob's life and career were straight-forward and uneventful until 1989 when he unexpectedly moved into his years of self-employment. That was the first of several surprising twists and turns that God used to eventually bring him to York where God's plans and purposes were waiting for him. Come hear how God has used this self-described computer geek in some unexpected and unusual ways to minister to men, women, and teens here in York. You never know what surprising things God can do when you are open to Him working "outside of the box" in your life!

Bob is a team member with the York CBMC. Bob graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in May 1975 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Mathematics and a Masters of Science in Electrical Engineering. After graduation Bob worked for a series of software development firms for over 14 years before a surprise corporate merger and subsequent layoff moved him into self-employment as a computer consultant.
